

or was it near 11 o'clock? A. It was near 11 o'clock.

Q He went off the beach, as you recall, at 10.30 o'clock?

A About 10.30, because I sized it up a half-hour between the time he left and the time I got up here to the house, because I stayed a little longer than he did. I came here and I looked at the time and it was around 11 o'clock. My guests came in some little while after that.

Q Have you any objections to letting us have the names of your guests? A. No, I have not. And these two relatives of mine, Mr. Riel, has said to me that he is very anxious to get Henry Stevens out of this trouble. He suggested writing him a letter, and a great friend of ours--my wife and I were here entertaining her for over a week--and she talked with him in Columbia--she said, "Why, Thad made a mistake on the day, Friday, because we know it was Thursday, but not Friday, and he has the time right. That Friday there, about five o'clock that evening on Thursday the 14th, 1922. I believe I will write Mr. Stevens a letter." And this friend of ours, she said, "Why, why not write Thad and tell him about it?" He intended to write in the meantime. I sent him the affidavits to sign and they all four signed them and swore to them. Mr. Stevens wanted me to keep those originals, but I promised Simpson I would give them to him, and I have copies of them. We had a type form and I filled
